

Privacy Statement

Privacy of information has become a matter of concern for many people. We want you to know the high value our firm places on the confidentiality of information you provide to us.

Our firm does not reveal any information about you to anyone without your permission. The staff is instructed about the attorney-client privilege and information obtained by staff is given the same privileged and confidential treatment as if given directly to the attorney.

Long before privacy was fashionable, our profession – and since its inception, this firm – understood the importance of your privacy and took steps to ensure that it is protected.

As a service to you and all visitors our website provides quality information regarding many legal and practical matters. We may request your contact information to verify you are a real person and not a robot. Additionally, we may send you an email for additional educational and learning opportunities.

NOTE: The hiring of a lawyer is an important decision that should not be based solely upon advertisements. The information contained within this website and blog in no way constitutes an attorney client relationship, nor should the content be misconstrued as legal advice.

Be aware that information sent over the Internet may not be secure. We welcome requests for information by email, which are kept in strictest confidence and not sold as to third parties, but ask that you do not transmit confidential information.